Re: In re OpenAI ChatGPT Litigation, Master File No. 23-cv-3223-AMO
Declaration of Nick Ryder

Dear Judge Illman:

Pursuant to ECF No. 214 and the Court's direction at the December 17, 2024, discovery hearing, OpenAI attaches hereto the Declaration of Nick Ryder, VP of Research, Foundations for OpenAI OpCo, LLC<sup>1</sup> cited in ECF No. 217.

Sincerely,

/s/ John R. Lanham

DECLARATION OF NICK RYDER IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS' OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFFS' LETTER BRIEF

I, Nick Ryder, hereby declare as follows:

1. I have been an employee of OpenAI OpCo, Inc. (“OpenAI”) since July 2019. I am currently the VP of Research, Foundations for OpenAI. In that role, I lead the data and scaling science operations for OpenAI. Prior to this role, I was Head of the Pre-Training team at OpenAI. Through my employment at OpenAI, I am familiar with the training process for OpenAI Large Language Models (“LLMs”) as well as OpenAI’s LLM development history.

2. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth below and if called as a witness, could testify competently thereto, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

3. As of February 2024, putting aside models specifically designed to generate code (including the Codex models), the only large language model series that OpenAI had developed and made available to the public as part of a commercial product are those referred to as GPT-3,<sup>1</sup> GPT-3.5, GPT-3.5 Turbo, GPT-4, and GPT-4 Turbo. No models bearing the designations “GPT-5” or “Orion” have been completed, much less made available for public use.

4. Since it was founded in 2015, OpenAI has created hundreds of thousands of artifacts that might each be called “models.” OpenAI, for example, has employed many hundreds of AI researchers (many of whom are no longer OpenAI employees), each of whom has conducted many machine learning experiments. Collecting useful information, including training data and documentation, about each of these research artifacts would be an incredibly complicated and burdensome exercise and would take months if not years of work, if even possible.

5. Similarly, during the course of developing a model, OpenAI researchers may create hundreds or thousands of versions of an LLM, including with respect to the GPT-3, GPT-3.5,

<sup>1</sup> While GPT-3 was originally developed for research purposes, it was later made available through the OpenAI API for a period of time. For purposes of this declaration, text-davinci-002 is considered a version of GPT-3.

GPT-3.5 Turbo, GPT-4, and GPT-4 Turbo models, including to implement continuous model upgrades to address minor issues such as bug fixes or performance enhancements. Only a small handful of these model versions are put into production and referred to as a GPT-class model like GPT-4; the remainder are never made part of a commercial product. Collecting useful information, including training data and documentation, for each of these model versions would be an extraordinarily complicated and burdensome exercise, and would take months if not years of work, if even possible.

6. I understand that OpenAI has previously disclosed that it used “two internet-based books corpora” to train GPT models.<sup>2</sup> These datasets were used to train the models referred to as GPT-3 and GPT-3.5, but to my knowledge and belief, they were not used to train any subsequent OpenAI GPT model.

I declare that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed this 22nd day of November, 2024 in San Francisco, CA.
